Left in charge of her siblings since her mother's death, and with the Thanksgiving Dinner looking like a failure, Leah Troyer wonders if she will ever be able to care for her family properly. To make matters worse, her aunts and cousins are coming to the meal as well—and with them comes the handsome Joshua Lapp. But though Leah feels an immediate attraction to Joshua, she knows she cannot entertain the thought of romance. She simply has no time for a courtship. Still, he is a kind and gentle man, and as the Thanksgiving holiday draws closer, Leah begins to realize that she doesn't have to do it all on her own. And that families are only made larger by sharing.
